For some time, this site has existed only as a place for my to play around with new ideas ... but it offered nothing to a casual visitor. Over the course of the next few weeks and month I hope to change that. Look for information and files relating to Joomla!, the Bible and humor as a start.

Considering the variety of things I am interested in, perhaps it is clear why there has to be a section of site called "Potpourri." Potpourri is a random collection of things ... look for more randomness, but see if I betray the randomness by developing some measure of organization.
