After lo these many months, another David Peake has found his way to the site. We are two!

Actually, his eighth grade students found the site (there is 15 minutes of fame for them ... divided equally, please). I received an email a while ago from this fine fellow (he is obviously a fine fellow ... his name alone insures it).

While the two of us have been planning and are highly motivated to take over the world ... numbers do matter. If you, like these very gifted and talented eighth grade students (see how I pander to them ... they are my recruiting staff in the Washington DC area) know anyone who is named David Peake, please take the lead of these intrepid young citizens and point your David Peake to this site.
